LOGLINE

A once-prolific film editor finds himself the prime suspect in a series of murders haunting a seedy 1970s film studio in this absurdist throwback to the Italian Giallo.

SYNOPSIS

Rey Ciso was once the greatest editor the world had ever seen. Since a horrific accident left him with four wooden fingers on his right hand, he's had to resort to cutting pulp films and trash pictures. When the lead actors from the film he's been editing turn up murdered at the studio, Rey is fingered as the number one suspect. The bodies continue to pile up in this absurdist giallo-thriller as Rey struggles to prove his innocence and learn the sinister truth lurking behind the scenes.

DIRECTORS' BIO

ADAM BROOKS AND MATTHEW KENNEDY

Matthew Kennedy and Adam Brooks have been making films since they were old enough to save their allowance and rent a camcorder from Radio Shack. After meeting through the Winnipeg Short Film Massacre in 2006, the two miscreants joined forces the following year to form the no-budget-movie-pow-erhouse - Astron-6. Kennedy and Brooks both appeared in the award winning Manborg, and Father's Day (co-directing the latter with the other members of Astron-6).

DIRECTORS'/PRODUCERS'/WRITERS' STATEMENT

The Editor is our love letter to the Italian giallo films of the 1970s and 80s; the convoluted murder mysteries of Mario Bava, the super-saturated color palettes of Dario Argento, and the supernatural twists of Lucio Fulci. Most of these old films were written in Italian but performed in English (even when the actors couldn't speak the language,) set in America but shot in Italy, all to appeal to a larger world market. This resulted in some often-unusual syntax and almost always-unusual cadences and deliveries on the part of the English speaking performers required to sync their deliveries to the original footage. It is perhaps as important to the giallo aesthetic as dream logic, hyper-violence or an overactive zoom lens. And it is this aesthetic that charmed us so much to begin with. With giallo films, the style is the substance.

Making The Editor has been our greatest creative challenge to date. We learned that making a period piece with multiple name actors, endless set pieces and special effects on a shoestring budget is a sleep depriving, hemorrhoid-inducing stress-mare to say the least. Sure, you might think we learned our lesson making Man-borg and Father's Day with the rest of Astron-6, but no. We jumped right back into the fire all over again (literally doing our own stunts) for this absurdist take on the genre. Our aim was to ramp up the production value, to shoot 4k instead of DSLR, to get some name actors, to make a Canadian giallo.

Everything was created from the ground up. Locations had to be built or painted or both. Every piece of furniture was carried in one piece at a time by us and our closest friends (we couldn't afford movers). Once we had the costumes, locations, set dec and actors in place, we would be exhausted, just in time to start shooting.

Our budget only allowed us a skeleton crew for one quarter of production. After we had shot that quarter it was up to the two of us to complete the rest along with a few friends and family as our only assistants. We took years off of our lives, lost weight and gained grey hair as we did every possible job one can do on a film. After months upon months of endless work hours we are happy to release our proudest achievement to date.

WHAT IS ASTRON-6?

In Tolkien lore, Astron-6 is the day of The Elvish New Year. And a new year is upon us indeed...

Astron-6 is composed of five filmmakers, writers and artists. These men are Adam Brooks, Jeremy Gillespie, Matthew Kennedy, Steven Kostanski and Conor Sweeney.

From their first meeting at The Winnipeg Short Film Massacre, the five men instantly found themselves embroiled in a deadly game of cat and mouse. Rather than destroy each other, the sworn enemies decided to unite - and then destroy themselves (once famous.)

Astron-6 is the brainchild of these five iconoclastic, multi-media artists who share a fascination with the mechanics of fear and laughter. They subvert the expectations of the seasoned viewer with the nightmarish and absurd. Their imagery and recurring themes are often torn from the childhood of the irony-craving, internet savvy Generations X and Y.

Paz de la Huerta was born and raised in New York City, to a Spanish-born father and a Minneapolis, Minnesota-born mother. She has been acting since the age of four, having trained at the SoHo Children's Acting Studio. Aside from acting, Paz is a skilled artist, designer, and writer who enjoys listening to punk rock music. She resides in Tribeca, New York, with her mother and sister. Appearing recently in Nurse 3D, de la Huerta is arguably best known for her role as Linda in Enter the Void or Lucy Dazinger in the HBO hit series, Boardwalk Empire.

SAMANTHA HILL

as BELLA

Critics have already hailed her for helping theatre audiences "fall in love with first love all over again." So it's no surprise that Canadian-born thesp Samantha Hill remains so committed to her own first love — that of performing on stage and in TV and film. (Thankfully, a childhood preoccupation with becoming a chiropractor was short-lived.) Sam's breakout role on Broadway was Christine Daae in The Phantom of the Opera and her breakout role on film is happening now as Bella in THE EDITOR.

ADAM BROOKS

as REY CISO

Adam Brooks has no formal acting training but has learned from experience over the past seven years. Thrown in front of the camera when Astron-6 was formed in 2007, Brooks took to acting like a duck in water and has since starred in Father's Day, and Manborg. Outside of the Astron-6 umbrella, Adam appeared in both Wrath of Grapes: The Don Cherry Story II and Mr. Hockey: The Gordie Howe Story. More info @ www.adambrooks.net

MATTHEW KENNEDY

Possessing a pair of the most elegantly piercing steel blue eyes ever to be captured on celluloid, German cult actor Udo Kier has made a distinct mark for himself in the world of cinema with roles in everything from obscure European exploitation films to the most mainstream of Hollywood fare. Over his 40-year career spanning over two hundred films, Udo Kier has worked with several brilliant directors: Paul Morrissey, Charles Matton, Dario Argento, Gus Van Sant, Lars von Trier and at long last, Astron-6.
